New Medicine for the Body, Mind and Soul

by Andreas Moritz

If healing is to be complete, lasting and purposeful it must occur simultaneously on all levels of body, mind, and spirit. Foremost, it must take place at the very causal stages of imbalance where the seeds of dissonance first begin to sprout and later manifest themselves as discomfort, emotional distress, or disease. It is now no longer sufficient to keep applying "remedies" that merely pacify the symptoms of dissatisfaction, emotional upset and physical illness. Our collective obsession with only fixing symptoms or solving problems without regard to what is causing them has led to enormous difficulties in almost every area of living. At the same time, we are at the threshold of a global transformation, where the original causes of any kind of malady that may be affecting an individual or a society are undeniably pushed to the surface, demanding our urgent attention. Yet we are not meant to struggle with this.

Most of us have already gone through the thick and thin of life (and life times), worked through a lot of karmic baggage. And although we may not always recognize this, we have reached a point where we only deserve the very best in life. To be able to move forward and release the limitations we still feel are holding us back, we may want to use one of the greatest love gifts that has recently been given to us by the spiritual beings from the higher dimensions. They have blessed us with a new system of healing -- a new medicine for the body, mind and soul. We have called it Ener-Chi Art.

What is Ener-Chi Art?

Ener-Chi Art is a system of healing that combines channeled artwork with light energies that are derived from other dimensions of existence. It consists of various parts, the first of which includes a series of 23 paintings that are imbued or "activated" with specific light rays. There is a painting for each part of the body, including every organ and system. If you look, for example, at the painting that corresponds to the heart for about 1 minute, very profound changes begin to occur in that organ. The flow of Chi (vital energy or life force) becomes fully restored and any negative thought forms, emotional imbalances, and karmic residues that may have lodged there, and possibly caused physical abnormalities, are systematically transmuted.

How Does It Work and What Does It Do?

Each part of the body, including each one of its trillions of cells, has its own auric field. The aura of the body, which is comprised of the numerous auras of its individual parts, goes beyond physical parameters, yet it influences physical and emotional life more than anything else. The human aura affects the atmosphere of the Earth with specific encodements, both positive and negative. Thus, negative thoughts and beliefs, emotional trauma, and other experiential episodes get caught up in the ionosphere of the Earth and may cause major global disturbances that affect the population, wildlife, and climate of the planet as a whole.

The effect of Ener-Chi Art spirals out from our light-body to the universe. It cleanses the aura as well as the physical and mental bodies, and balances the Chi force throughout the body. Similar to the process of osmosis, it transports energy in and out of the body without any disruption. This effect occurs instantly and can be verified through a simple muscle testing procedure applied both before and after viewing the Ener-Chi Art pictures. It can also be made visible to the eye by taking auric photographs of the body.

Additionally, Ener-Chi Art has a uniquely beneficial effect on the genetic blueprint of the body -- the DNA. Research has shown that only a fraction of our DNA is currently active. Ener-Chi Art is designed to activate the codes within the DNA structure that are linked with total immunity to disease and full use of the body's enormous, but so far untapped, potential.

Ener-Chi Art is so unique because it addresses the original causes of all possible causes that may be responsible for the physical, mental and emotional problems prevalent in our lives today, including those of karmic origin. It assists in raising the body's frequencies and loosening its density, so that we will be able to live and function in higher dimensions than we currently have access to. Direct access to these realms will remove fear from life and replace it with the powerful love energies that are capable of accomplishing almost anything without effort or struggle.

The Importance of Chi-Balancing

Ener-Chi Art has been given to us at a time when humankind is dividing itself into two major groups: one that is ready to move out of the prison of polarity where good and bad, right and wrong, love and fear, etc., are the accepted opposites that control individual and collective life; and the other that continues to rely on problems and negativity as the principal tool to learn life's lessons. Current fundamental personal and planetary changes literally force us to make a choice. Ener-Chi Art has been brought into existence to assist us in this process, making the transition smooth, easy and enjoyable.

As we became increasingly aware of the profound nature of this artwork, we were given further information about the implications that would result from spreading Ener-Chi Art to the general population. As more and more people begin to clean up their auric fields and energy circuits, and go through profound healing events, the Earth's own energy field also begins to heal and permits light energies of higher frequencies to penetrate the myriad life forms on the planet. This gradually loosens up the density of matter of all living and non-living things, and allows us to increasingly rely on mere thought energy to accomplish our life's goals and purpose. This also takes away the fears, struggles, and strife that most of us have become so accustomed to.

Most ancient systems of health and healing are based on the belief that the balanced flow of Chi is the key determinant for a healthy body and mind. Negative thoughts, poor diet and nutrition, accumulation of toxins in the body, karmic influences, stress and a polluted environment, among other factors, can upset the balanced flow of Chi through the subtle energy ducts (meridians) and their tiny sub-pathways in the body. Whenever a group of cells, an organ or system receives either too little or too much Chi, normal bodily functions become disrupted and physical problems begin to manifest themselves, affecting the well-being of body, mind, and soul.

Children who are born with physical or mental defects suffer a Chi imbalance that is mainly related to karmic influences from former life times, although the condition itself may serve as a means to undo the knots of karma and, at the same time, help to teach others the life lessons of compassion and unconditional love. Health problems that are acquired later in life may or may not originate from karmic causes, but are equally related to either stagnant or excessive flow of Chi.

Since Chi is a universal commodity that exists inside and outside our body, an imbalance anywhere is directly linked with an imbalanced flow of Chi. If there were a method to instantly balance Chi and maintain proper Chi flow through the body, it would imply that even karmic influences and weaknesses on the level of the soul are in the process of being transmuted. Otherwise, the former Chi imbalance would recur within a short period of time -- a common experience among people who are helped by a healer, yet for a little while only. There is no other known system that is capable of balancing Chi so quickly and long-lasting as Ener-Chi Art does; an effect that can be verified by a simple do-it-yourself testing procedure.

It's A Time for Miracles

The first part of Ener-Chi Art is not to be used as a quick fix method for curing physical ailments, although many conditions may simply vanish within days or weeks after applying it just once. Even cases of severe spinal scoliosis have reversed completely within a matter of days. Ener-Chi Art is meant for a much higher purpose and, thus, is more of an energetic nature than a physical nature. The art healing process allows the body to go through a profound energy exchange, a symbiotic process of healing the temple within in concert with healing the temple without. Its true purpose is of a higher frequency nature; laying a pathway to a new level of existence for everyone.

At a time when the main emphasis has been on fixing physical problems, it may be useful to understand that any symptom of disease originates in a misconception of who we really are, which has major fear-generating effects on the level of the soul. In this sense, the presence of physical problems literally forces a person to attend to his/her own internal needs and indicates that some aspects of the soul still require healing. The bottom line is that the body simply cannot be healed unless the soul is healed first. Hence, the attempt to cure diseases without attending to their root causes (on the level of the soul) is expressed in the fact that 90 percent of all diseases today are of a chronic nature, which means they defy treatment. The first series of 23 Ener-Chi Art paintings are designed to heal all the wounds of the soul from both the past and the present.

Once the soul healing has taken place, it does not require much to put an end to physical imbalances or diseases altogether, even if they are considered terminal. This will be dealt with by the second part of Ener-Chi Art, which is still in the process of development and may be completed by the end of 1999. Apart from generating an instant cleansing effect in our bodies, it will also be used to clean up our rivers, the air, the vegetable, animal and mineral kingdoms, etc., thereby allowing all life forms -- and the planet as a whole -- to raise their frequencies in preparation for bringing forth and structuring the New World. This second aspect of Ener-Chi Art also deals with specific diseases that affect our societies, animals, and natural ecological systems.

It is most encouraging to know that with the worst problems the world has ever faced, we are also given the most simple and effective ways to resolve them, once and for all. In this sense, our collective future looks very hopeful and bright. We are fast moving into an era when miracles will be the most common and unquestioned natural phenomena on this planet.
